

Cicely Saunders Institute Open Seminar Series

Reciprocal Relationships and the Importance of Patient and Public Feedback in Health Research

By Dr. Elspeth Mathie, University of Hertfordshire

Wednesday 30th May 2018, 4-5pm

Location: Dinwoodie Lecture Theatre, Ground Floor, Cicely Saunders Institute, King's College London, Bessemer Road, London SE5 9PJ

The Speaker

Dr. Elspeth Mathie (MA, PhD) is a Senior Research Fellow at CRIPACC (Centre for Research in Public Health and Community Care), University of Hertfordshire and is co-lead for the Collaboration for Applied Leadership in Health Research and Care (CLAHRC) East of England, Patient and Public Involvement in Research Theme. Research interests; care homes, dementia, PPI (RAPPORT study).

Abstract

Patient and Public Involvement (PPI) contributors in the East of England flagged up the issue that feedback (from researchers to PPI contributors) was minimal or absent. PPI contributors reported spending valuable time commenting on complex issues and continue to volunteer without acknowledgement, thanks or knowing if their input was useful. The talk will include the findings from our CLAHRC EoE funded study which included a survey, interviews and audits. Six PPI groups co-designed PPI Feedback tools which have been implemented and a PPI Feedback Guidance for researchers has been produced.

This event is FREE TO ATTEND - no need to register!

The series aim is to optimise opportunities for local, national and international networking within palliative care and rehabilitation. We facilitate seminars to assist in improving practice, education and policy, and the integration of research and clinical endeavours.
